

ed him
third
we en
He was
be talk
oubtless
into a car
en as the precious
room
else but uth was ness that fore at a
or brush
down to
b his hair
et married
and occas
ill remem
erdancy in ally a good
his cheer
ches of th
he recall
youth who
and the centing a
or to and stained ugh, that etting
round
ok flat,
conven
corbid,
now on
out for where n beg
u feet;
fuzzy
thin
to with y is gusily, Alarico
d olive nter.

"Pet
New Year
catchhands
"A en and
dog resting
ty cause.
s that the Fifty-fourth
gment was
sed to give
full possession.
r to the rent proceeded
John's River.
et married
and occas
ill remem
erdancy in ally a good
his cheer
ches of th
he recall
youth who
and the centing a
or to and
stained ugh, that
etting
round
ok flat,
conven
corbid,
now on
out for
where
n beg
u feet;
fuzzy
thin
to with
y is gusily, Alarico
d olive
nter.

large amount of rolling rock. No one but an eye-witness can form any idea of what the sudden entry of a victorious army into a town means. Panic seizes all the residents and their only thought is to get as far away as possible from that awful enemy. Houses, stores, everything is abandoned, and in less time than it takes to tell it the soldiers have full possession. Each one considers himself monarch of all he surveys, and loses no time in appropriating whatever his heart most desires. There is no better place than the library where he makes his choice selections. The pan-makes his feast for the inner man to try who consider the stomach above these. The applejack in the cellar has a long to wait for the bibaceous ones who have been patiently longing for the opportunity. The musical inclined hunt up everything that will give even a pretence for sound and quantity rather than quality is the rule, but the most ludicrous part of a raid like this is when the fun-loving band has arrayed themselves in the wearing apparel found in closets and chests. I never knew it to fall when a soldier had donned the dress of the fairer sex that they did not invariably finish up with the hoop skirt and corset on the outside.

From Jacksonville the Thirty-fifth was ordered again to South Carolina to co-operate with Sherman who was then on his famous march from Atlanta to the sea. On the 30th of November they fought the battle of Honey Hill. I have yet to see in history a single line on this battle, but in my mind there was no engagement more deserving of mention. For the forces engaged and the time it took it was indeed a sharp one. There was a narrow corduroy road flanked on both sides with almost impenetrable swamps. A sharp bend brought us to an elevated place where a fort had been built directly across the road, mounting five guns which pointed down at us like so many fingers. There was no chance to form line of battle. In massed columns we were ordered to charge round that bend, up the hill and take the fort. With a yell we double quickened forward. Those guns were as silent as the grave until we reached the trenches, when out of their mouths belched fire, followed by grape and canister. A scythe drawn through flowing grass could not have mowed it down more completely than that charge did the brave men in front of that line. We tried it again and again, and finally fell back to our starting point. At our recall that night four officers and 125 men failed to respond.

I remember well when we started on our last mad charge up that hill. I briefed Brigadier General for gallant services.

In February, 1866 I was ordered to proceed with my company and take command of Johns Island with instructions to aid the Freedman's Bureau in establishing amicable relations between the planters and their former slaves. It was a very hard matter to convince the freedmen that they had not a right to take possession of the land on which many of them had spent the greater part of their lives. Most of them positively refused to enter into any contract with their old masters, and the only alternative was to remove them to one of the sea islands, where the Government had made provision for them.

In May I was ordered to rejoin my regiment at Summerville, S. C. War was over, but it was necessary to change the system of government from martial to civil law. The circuit courts had been largely composed of officers of the United States Army. Every civilian was compelled to take the oath of allegiance and the reins of government was turned over to them. While there was a semblance of the Confederacy the women were loyal to that cause, but they could not long withstand the allurements of our soldiers in time of peace, and long before the recall of the troops they were fairly reconstructed, and more than one of them surrendered and accompanied the Yankee soldier back to his Northern home. On the 23d day of July, just five years from the date of my enlistment, I was mustered out of the service and returned home.

A NEW CASINO.

It Will Make Greenwood Lake a Great Place for Outing Parties.

The handsome casino which Abram S. Hewitt is building at Greenwood Lake will be completed by Decoration Day, when the formal opening of business will take place. The casino is a triumph for the lake, and the grounds around it are very attractive. The details of the construction of the new building excite the admiration of all who visit it, and the arrangement of the bedrooms on the third floor is especially commended. Each room is large, light and cool. Every room has a door opening out upon the piazza, from which a fine view of the lake can be enjoyed, and many of them have no other means of entrance and exit. There are twenty-six rooms, and all are large and well finished. In the attic the servants' room will be situated, and the second floor will contain the office, cafe, dining-rooms, parlor, pantry, kitchen and scullery. On the first floor four perfect bowling-alleys, a billiard-room and a lavatory have been fitted up. The staircases in the building are numerous, and

Life Insurance AND INVESTMENT Mutual Life

The Consolidated Policy issued by THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK contains VANTAGES with FEWER than any Investment Insurance ever offered. It combines INSURANCE, ENDOWMENT, INVESTMENT, ANNUAL.

No other company offers Apply Only to Company for details.

RICHARD A. MORTON
ROBERT A. BRANSON
GEORGE B. RAY
General Agents
745 BROAD STREET
Any information on application to
J. CORY JOHNSON
P. O. Box 217, Newark, N. J.

BALDWIN

Montclair, Bloomfield, Newark, N. J.

200 Market St.
J. G. Chase & Co.
Doubtless Lumber

Furniture and Piano Heavy Hauling of all Descriptions

Orders by mail, telephone or to actual times, and TELEPHONE 501 & 502

C. W. MA

Wholesale

GRO